Property Tax Rates

This booklet lists 2002 and 2003 property tax rates for all taxing units in Utah. In 2003 there were over 600 entities authorized to impose property taxes in Utah. This included 29 county governments, 40 school districts, 237 cities and towns, and over 325 special taxing districts. The distribution of all property taxes is shown in the chart at the left.

The tax rate is multiplied by the taxable value of the property to give the amount of taxes owed. The taxable value is a percentage of fair market value depending on the type of property. The percentages for the various classes of property are shown here:

Classification	Percent of Fair Market Value
Centrally Assessed	100%
Personal Property ¹	100%
Commercial	100%
Primary Residence	55%
Secondary Residence	100%
Greenbelt Farmland ²	**

¹ Personal property which is part of a residence is exempt from property taxes. Motor vehicles are assessed a "fee-in-lieu" of taxes according to a graduated scale ranging from $10 to $150 depending on vehicle age.

² Based on value for agricultural purposes.

Sales Ratio Study

The Utah State Tax Commission annually conducts an Assessment/Sales Ratio Study based on actual property sales to ensure that all locally assessed real property throughout the state is assessed uniformly based on market value. If a county's average assessed value for a particular class of property is greater than $\pm 10\%$, the Tax Commission will issue an order to "factor" the values in that county to bring them in line with market values. No factoring orders were issued for 2004.

Instructions for Finding Tax Rate

To find the tax rate, locate the page showing the county and school district in which the property is situated. Then find the municipality or incorporated area. The tax rate for 2003 can be found in the column "2003 Tax Rate." In those cases where the listing is followed by the words "Where applicable add A, B, C, etc.," these special district levies must be added if the property is situated within their boundaries. This can best be determined by examining a previous tax notice or by contacting the county assessor.

Property Taxes—How Utah Compares

While Utah ranks 9th highest in total state and local taxes as a percent of personal income, Utah's property tax burden is lower than the national average according to two 2003 reports.

The Utah Taxpayers Association's annual report "How Utah Compares" ranked Utah's property tax burden 35th or 16.9% below the national average. The ranking resulted from dividing each state's total property taxes collected by each state's total personal income.

Some politicians have suggested because of our relatively low property tax ranking that Utah's property taxes should be increased. However, if Utah's property tax burden were increased to the national average and all other taxes remained the same, Utah's total tax and fee ranking would rise to fourth place.

A Minnesota Taxpayers Association study also indicates that property tax burdens in Utah—particularly for homeowners—rank in the bottom twenty states. The study examined 2002 property tax rates and applied them to residential, commercial and industrial property in the largest urban city and the average rural city in each state. For Utah, property tax rates in Salt Lake City and Richfield were used for comparison.

As demonstrated in the accompanying chart, the property tax burden in Utah varied significantly according to property type. Residential properties pay far less than similar properties in other states. Utah property taxes ranked 37th for a rural residence and 44th for an urban residence. A rural residence pays only 56.1% of the U.S. average and an urban residence pays only 52.6%. This low percentage is largely due to the exemption for primary residential property in Utah, which is taxed at 55% of market value, whereas, commercial and industrial properties are taxed at 100% of market value. Secondary residences (e.g. cabins) are also taxed at 100% of market value but were not part of the Minnesota study.

Even though commercial and industrial properties are more heavily taxed than residences in Utah, their property taxes were still less than the national average, ranking from 30th to 41st. Business and commercial properties in Utah pay from 65.6% to 84.8% of the national average for properties of similar value.
